American Academy of Pediatrics

DEDICATED TO THE HEALTH OF ALL CHILDREN®

Your priority as a pediatrician is to provide the best possible care for kids and their families. That care looks different from day to day, and even hour to hour—especially as you navigate another busy respiratory virus season.

Because you are the most trusted source of information for the families and patients in your care, it is imperative for you to have access to the information you need—now. The AAP is ready with the latest resources synthesizing expert guidance, evidence-based research, and clinical practice guidelines, along with practice management tools to help you support your clinical decision-making.

Look to these new and trusted resources designed to help you focus on what matters most.

For 85 years pediatricians have “referred to the Red Book” for trustworthy guidance on pediatric infectious disease prevention, management, and control. While the diseases and outbreaks may have changed since that first edition in 1938, the 33rd Edition continues this tradition of excellence with the most current information about vaccines, emerging infectious diseases, diagnostic modalities, and treatment recommendations.

To provide the best in care, start with the best in clinical pediatric education. Look to AAP CME live and virtual activities to fulfill your educational needs. These courses allow you to hear from experts on a variety of topics, stay current with the latest medical advances and best practices, and connect with your colleagues. View our outstanding 2024 calendar of events on page 30.

Every child deserves the utmost care. Your dedication to the well-being of children and the care you provide makes all the difference.

Pediatric Telehealth Best Practices

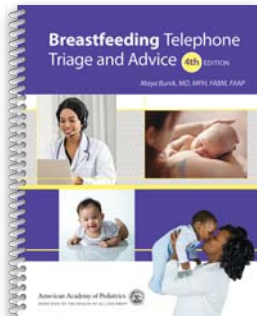

Use of telehealth was already on the rise before the COVID-19 public health emergency, but the pandemic brought it to the forefront of medical care. With its increased use came a lot of questions—“How can I assist pediatric patients with limited access to technology?” “Do this patient’s symptoms make them a good candidate for telehealth?” “How do I code this visit?” This resource answers those questions and seeks to help pediatric providers develop efficient, effective telehealth services within their own practices.

Pediatric Telehealth Best Practices goes beyond AAP policy to offer straightforward strategies for establishing and sustaining a successful telehealth program. Its contents are curated from AAP published content, including guidance from the Section on Telehealth Care as well as journals and books.

You-ology

A Puberty Guide for Every Body

Melisa Holmes, MD, FACOG; Trish Hutchison, MD, FAAP; and Kathryn Lowe, MD, FAAP

What if learning about changing bodies wasn't secretive or shameful? And what if it could even be inclusive, fun, and, well, kind of adorable? A new kind of puberty guide, You-ology embraces an inclusive approach that normalizes puberty for all kids. Traditional puberty education only contributes to a sense of isolation and often does not include all kids' experience of puberty and leaves kids with questions about how puberty will affect their friends and classmates. For curious kids and parents looking to talk about puberty in an inclusive way, You-ology offers fact-based, age-appropriate, and body-positive information about the physical, social, and emotional changes ahead for all kids. Colorful illustrations keep the tone upbeat and engaging, while short stories featuring a cast of diverse characters add relatability and humor.
